dedication

the editors of the 1974 oracle have chosen as their dedicatee a teacher in every sense of the word, mr. john simon.

with his hair askew and a rakish smile, he has managed to bring the inanimate figures of mathematics to vibrant life for countless students. illustrating, for example, inverse relationships by executing a headstand before his pupils, he is a true performer in the drama and comedy of education.

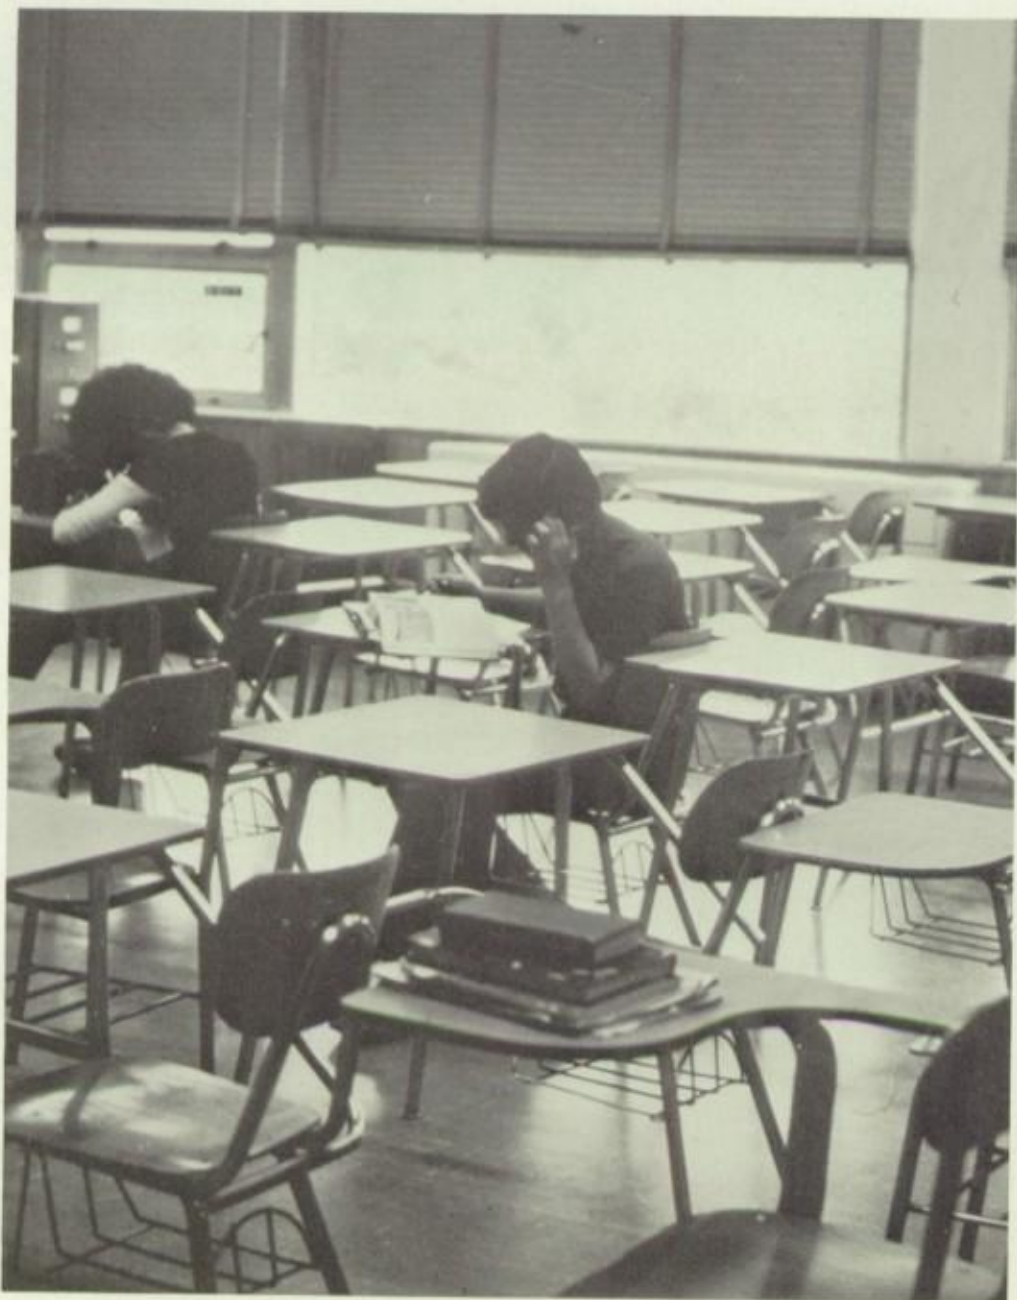

his daily interchange with his classes is one in which he is willing to play both teacher and student — as a result, both he and his students learn lessons that elude textbook definitions.

mr. simon has devoted himself to fulfilling his role not only as a teacher, but as a friend and a human being. in thanks and gratitude, we offer this dedication.

there's a tree outside my nine o'clock class whose leaves are beginning to change,
and sitting here
with a book in my hands i think it's rather strange to be studying english or french or math
when just outside this wall the leaves are turning to butterscotch
in this sunny caramel fall.

now we're on our own time.
all we need is warmth,
a smile, a song,
until once again
the curtain rises . . .

Dear L.P.,

Well, This year has been an unexpected change for the best. I wondered if we'd ever speak again, but I was glad to see that things worked themselves out and have gone fine. It's funny getting "re-know" you but it's a lot better being on "good" terms with you. Hope fragile footprints are silent proof of the day's performance. only a few remain to see the empty stage.

we'll continue this way for the rest of the year and the years to come.

about 3 months ago. I am glad I did. I enjoyed our little talk and sorry about talking you a lot about you. But we are still
"what is it to be wise? 'tis but to know how little can be known: to see others' faults and feel your own."
I hope the same goes we us
I hope next year you will be number one singles and maybe you will play tennis with some new year. Love

Dear Lisa,
It was nice
meeting you this year.
strong healthy and good look the curtain falls on empty corridors and silent courtyards . . . but listen closely and you will hear echoes of the past, present . . . and future.
